Journal Credit 1: Character Character Sheet

Name: _____

Character Role	Description of Character Role	Example of this Role
Protagonist	responsible for moving the main conflict of the story forward. They must do things or make choices that
Antagonist	The primary bad guy, opposes the protagonist physically and/or emotionally
Mentor	This character helps or instructs the protagonist, often providing wisdom or advice that must be learned by the protagonist, often in the protagonist's conscience
Supporter	right-hand man to the protagonist, they may not know the antagonist, but they serve the same purpose - to help the protagonist from reaching his goal. Sometimes they're just an extra person helping with the "good guy"
Sidekick	The protagonist's unconditionally loyal friend, usually looks to protect a theme with a lot of heart
Ally	The same as a supporter, but they seem not to believe in the theme or believe in achieving the protagonist's goal, they're really neutral at everything
Emotional	This character acts according to their gut and lets emotions fuel their decisions, they are impulsive, acts before thinking it through
Logical	The rational one, they take things out, they're logical, they're solutions that are often "out of the box" when a character is stuck in a situation

Embodying the character allows performers to create believable and immersive experiences.
